Successful Meeting Beaver Dam Hall

Thursday last, April 14th, a very successful meeting was held at the Beaver Dam Hall, Madden, when zone four, of the Cochrane Constituency Social Credit League, with members of the Crossfield, Water Valley and Dartique Groups gathering.

C. J. Aarsby, Carstairs, acted as chairman and conducted the routine business.

Mr. W. R. King, M.L.A., was introduced and delivered an interesting speech, explaining important bills. The chief discussion centered on the production tax bill. The speaker explained how this bill was only the skeleton of what it would be in future and that it would be changed in many ways, to suit the people. He went on and explained how four percent covered the taxes and the remaining three percent were crop insurance. This removes land and school taxes, which are included in the production tax.

Mr. King's address was very much enjoyed, and many questions were asked, which he ably answered, clearing many dark points in the various bills.

A short programme of songs, solos, recitations and instrumental music was presented. In this, special mention may be made of Shorty Brown who brought roars of laughter from the crowd.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the zone, after which all wended their way home, satisfied with the proceedings of the evening.

Vera Atkin visited relatives at Carmangay

Sunday next, April 24th, is the Oddfellows Anniversary service in the United Church, Crossfield. Everyone is invited to attend.

Easter Services at Anglican Church

The Church was tastefully decorated for Easter Day by Mrs. Currie and the members of the Bible Class. The White colours on the Altar, with the white and coloured flowers and the scent of the Lilies, made a beautiful and glorious background for the Easter services.

The flowers were given by Mrs. R. Boyle, who sends a gift of flowers regularly every Easter in memory of her husband the late Lt. Colonel Boyle; by Miss Cartwright, Mrs. Waterhouse, the Women's Guild and the Rectory.

The 7:00 a.m. service was gratifying for the hour. But we were somewhat disappointed at the absence of many of our old friends at the service in the Evening.

The small choir sang the hymns very nicely and chanted the psalms

Superstitious Susan.

A comedy in three acts, by the Crossfield Dramatic Society, is an unusual play and will appeal to everyone. It furnishes over two hours of delightful entertainment.

The public should respond liberally to encourage our local talent, consisting of all young people.

Tickets for this comedy are being taken freely. There are still some choice seats available, but don't wait until the last minute and be disappointed.

Reserved seat ticket holders are urgently requested to be in place on time, 8:15 p.m., as late comers disturb the players and the audience.

As an advance patronage for the performance on Friday evening, April 29th, seems to show a capacity house, the society has decided to present the comedy again on Friday evening, May 6th, so that anyone finding it inconvenient to attend the first performance, may have the privilege the second evening, and the society hopes to fill the hall on both occasions.

The Crossfield Dramatic Society still has room for more members, and the programme in prospect for the fall and winter months promises to be instructive and interesting.

Anyone wishing to join the society should apply to Miss Anne Cameron, Secretary.

Death Follows After Car Stalls in Mud

Trochu—Rev. H. Young, pastor in this district, died here early Friday morning following a brief illness, at 66 years of age. He received a severe chill after his automobile got stuck in the mud last week. After walking a mile and a half for assistance, he complained of ill health, and was confined to his bed for several days before he died.

Mr. Young was to have moved away to Mission, B.C. last June. Surviving are his wife, five daughters, Mrs. Morris, Bowden; Mrs. Gilmour and Jessie Young, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. Bavcroft, of B.C.; and Marjorie at home, and two sons, Gordon at Creston, B.C. and Douglas at home.—Herald

Funeral services were held from the United Church, Bowden, Monday last, April 18th.

The Rev. Young was well-known in this district, having been pastor of the local United Church for six years.

The following Crossfield people attended the funeral:

Mr. and Mrs. G. Bennie, Mrs. Cowling, Mr. and Mrs. I.P. Metheral, Miss G. Metheral, Rev. and Mrs. S.R. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Fox, Mr. W. Laut, Mr. and Mrs. F. Purvis and Mr. and Mrs. J. Belshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Walroth and family.

Baseball Meeting Very Interesting

An interesting Baseball meeting was held Saturday last, at the Oliver Cafeteria.

Both Junior and Senior League's were formed, consisting of Water Valley, Cremona, Madden, and Crossfield. Schedules will be drawn up and both leagues will play at the same time and place, thus making each game a double-header. The Juniors will consist of those 17 years and under and the Senior will be 18 and over.

The following officers were elected: President, Everett Bills; Secretary, G. Butler,

It looks like some good entertainment this year. A little encouragement will greatly assist.

Employment Commission Report

Whatever parliament may do with the final report of the Purvis National Commission on Employment and whatever discussion may take place in the House of Commons with respect to the recommendations of the Commission, it is reasonable to assume that by the time the contents of the report have been well digested by the public, it will provoke a great deal of debate throughout the country and some aspects of it are destined to prove controversial.

Some phases of the report will undoubtedly receive quite general support throughout the country, both in Eastern and Western Canada, and probably in this category can be placed the fundamental premise that the long range solution of the problem of unemployment is some from of national unemployment insurance which, as is pointed out, is already projected by the Federal government, supported by a supplementary system of unemployment relief.

Opinions Differ

So far as this general principle is concerned the commission was unanimous in its approval but on the question of assumption of responsibility for unemployment aid there was a divergence of opinion, one member of the Commission, Mrs. Mary Sutherland of Vancouver, dissenting from the joint opinion of the other members that this responsibility should be assumed in its entirety by the Federal government, Mrs. Sutherland expressing it as her opinion: "That it is reasonable to assume that the responsibility for the loss of employment in a given district resulting from unemployment (the loss of occupation) should rest on the unit of government nearest the applicant, the Municipality and—on the Province, the Dominion contributing thereto when, in its view, a practical necessity exists because of the unusual nature or extent of the distress."

The fact alone that one of the members of the Commission should have chosen to sign the report with a reservation on which she aptly terms a fundamental principle, is bound to bring this question of policy into the limelight and ensures for it a considerable amount of controversy before the question is settled to the satisfaction of the general public, if ever.

Room For Improvement

Whatever may be the outcome of this divergence of opinion on this outstandingly important aspect of the question, however, there will be general agreement with the Commission's opinion that any system of unemployment insurance and unemployment relief aid should be closely co-ordinated with a system of employment offices and services.

Under the present set up it has been felt, and without some foundation, that there is not sufficient co-operation between the administration of relief and the governmental business of bringing together work and people who are unemployed. Anything that can be done to ensure the very closest co-operation between these two functions will be an important step in the right direction.

Another aspect of the report which is likely to provoke considerable controversy, and particularly in the west, is the Commission's lukewarm attitude towards proposals to initiate programs of public works as a temporary alleviation of unemployment, though there will be agreement with the commission's recommendations as to types of work which should be undertaken if the government decides that works should be instituted and put into effect.

Demand For Works

The demand for the institution of public works programs in lieu of direct relief has grown very rapidly in the west in the last few months or in the past year and this demand is by no means confined to the urban centres. Only recently the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities went on record in support of a relief works program to be put into effect not later than June 15 and there is a growing opinion in the rural districts of the other western provinces that public work, even if it is more costly, is preferable to a dole system.

This viewpoint is taken on the ground that if constructive work can be provided, especially if it constitutes undertakings which will return revenue to the country the tax payers, at least, will get some return for the millions which are and have been expended for relief and that the sapping of morale which enforced idleness entails will be eliminated.

There is no gainsaying the Commission's statement that "hastily conceived or impromptu programs of public works are dangerous and likely to be abortive" for the several reasons which are outlined in the report, but there are projects which can be undertaken which will provide a substantial amount of work for unskilled labor, which are needed for the development of the country and which can be counted upon to at least partially repay their costs, if not immediately, at any rate eventually, and without interfering with or retarding private industry or the absorption of skilled labor into private industry.

Want To Be Shown

It can be taken for granted that the people of Western Canada will want to be shown very cogent reasons before they are willing to abandon a strong desire to see public work replace direct relief, at least to the extent that it can be done reasonable and on an economic basis.

Position Is Reversed

In 1880 Tipping System Was Unknown In United States

In 1880, an English traveler named John Fowler stopped at a little up-state New York town. He had supper, lodging and breakfast, and the charge amounted to $1.00, with no tips. The traveler was more impressed by the absence of the tips than by the reasonableness of the charge. Commenting on the incident in the April Forum, Alvin F. Harlow sighs: "Alack, the position is now reversed, and America is the land of bigger and better tipping." In 1930, to reprint one item, New York City paid its taxi drivers $26,000,000 in tips. Tips for barbers, shoeshiners, corset-fitters: tips extended from janitor service to that tip-ad-absurdum, the hat-check tip, amounting in a few weeks to more than the cost of that! Unfortunate, ungrateful Americans, the contributions to the something-for-nothing urge and the pauper psychology, this new "racket in disguise" has its economic as well as its moral weakness. For, asks Mr. Harlow, "Who is to blame for the small salaries? Primarily, you are. You have developed the tipping system to a point where employers rely on it... If the practice should, by a miracle, cease tomorrow, employees, unions, and labor boards would quickly force employers to raise wages... and employers and patrons would be able to meet and part on a basis of self-respect."

AT HOME 20 WEEKS WITH RHEUMATISM

Wife Feared Husband Would Never Work Again

When her husband became ill for 20 weeks with rheumatism in his back, this woman began to think he would never work again. At last, she said to him: "Let's try to get you to work again. What took place was in her own words: "A miracle!" Here is her letter:

"My husband is suffering from rheumatism and I fear that he will never work again. Some time ago I had him in the house 20 weeks with it. I really didn't think he would ever work again. I tried all the different kinds of salts you could mention, but none of them did him any good. Then I said, 'Let's try Kruschen Salts to see what they will do.' Since then we have proved Kruschen Salts to be what they weight in gold. My husband is back at his job, thanks to Kruschen Salts. The change made is like a miracle."

(Mrs.) E. B. (Two of the salts in Kruschen are the most effective solvents of uric acid crystals known to science. They dissolve the edges of the painful crystals and convert them into a harmless solution, which is then expelled through the natural channels.

Emergency Grain Reserve

Shipping Magnate Urges Britain To Act At Once

Creation of an emergency grain reserve to tide over the British Isles for not less than six months is urged by Philip Halpin, chairman of the Holt Line.

With prevailing low freight rates and reasonable wheat prices, he suggested the British government would be well advised to seize the opportunity and act at once.

Mr. Halpin believes there are too many ships in the world to operate economically in face of the trade available. Notwithstanding, there was growing agitation for increased tonnage to safeguard Britain from the possibility of starvation in time of war.

If tonnage was brought to the level existing in 1914 the industry would be forced into state control which, he said, would signalize the end of the individualistic supremacy of British shipping.

Feed For Hogs

Experiments Have Shown That Barley Is Superior To Corn

Experiments conducted for the past two years have shown barley superior to corn as a hog feed. Prof. W. Crampton of Macdonald College, Quebec, said at the annual National Barley Committee meeting at Winnipeg:

Oats is inferior to both barley and corn, he added, while mixtures of oats and barley or oats and corn give results intermediate between single grains.

A Nuisance

When The Radio Man Says There Will Be A Fine For Station Announcement

A radio program may be going at high speed when the announcer breaks in with news that there will be a "pause for station announcements." Why? This has interested us for some time. Apparently there is a rule of some kind or another that every so often the listener must be informed as to the station he is tuned to.

In the old days it is possible that this was desirable. When radio was a new toy and when listeners often spent half the night trying to see how many stations they could pick up there was curiosity, but today the stations the could hear. But today, the stations have gone. In these days of chain programs and well-established bands everyone must know the station he is hearing. Can there be any doubt about it?

We confess that every time we hear a pause for station announcements we feel like saying seat to the radio.—Regina Leader-Post.

There Was A Reason

Why London Police Patrol Did Not See Any Speeders

A friendly warning word "Be aware! Police trap working" was written in tar on a sheet of paper, which motorists in Dartmouth Park Hill, Highgate, London, saw tied to railings. A police patrol was waiting lower down the road. No doubt the officers wondered why motorists showed no inclination to speed—until a park keeper told them about the notice.

Lord Balfour's Prophecy

In 1916 He Foretold Creation Of Great German-Speaking State

A writer in the London Daily Telegraph calls attention to a remarkable memorandum written by Lord Balfour for the British Cabinet in November, 1916, while the great guns still roared on the Western Front.

"The result of the war," he wrote, "may be the complete breakup of the Dual Monarchy, and if the Dual Monarchy breaks up... such a change would create a great German-speaking state more formidable than Germany before the war. I do not dispute from myself that the dangers of such a Teutonic reorganization are considerable... if the result of the war is to convince the German-speaking peoples that their only hope of national greatness lies in their coming together to forget all differences and welding themselves into a single powerful state."

How much might have been different had the Allies remembered that at Versailles.

Virtue Of Chewing Gum

Habit Appears To Have Much To Command It

Whenever we see a face marked with wrinkles, we think of the wrinkles as being caused by a habit. We have heard of the man who confessed he had spent his pay in a merry-go-round. "Yo bin ridin' all day," she said, "but yo never got nowhere." The gum chewer chews for hours, but never eats anything. That, however, is no condemnation of the chewing gum habit. In fact, it has much to command it. Chewing that pleasant substance could never have attained the vast popularity it has unless it had merits.

Therefore we are glad to find that the man who has lost 130 pounds.

Might Change Their Luck

Egypt Decides To Remove Ancient Kings From Exhibition

Egypt is planning to rebury its Pharaohs, sealing them down under the earth never again to be seen by the eye of man. Once they were exhibited in a museum at Cairo, but later were removed by the Government to the mausoleum built as a tomb for Zaghloul Pasha, national hero of Egypt, who died in 1927. Last year the Government moved Zaghloul from a temporary tomb and reburied him in the mausoleum, moving the Pharaohs back to the Cairo museum. Now it is proposed to build a special mausoleum for them either at Giza, near the pyramids, or at Helopolis. Throughout the land thousands believe that wresting the Pharaohs from their tombs has brought bad luck.

Washington agriculture department foreign trade experts reported Sweden has developed a new type of spring wheat, expected soon to reduce that country's imports of North American grain.

Sweden's recent imports of wheat, averaging about 1,500,000 bushels a year, have been largely from the United States and Canada. They consisted almost entirely of superior grades used in making high quality flour.

SEES CANADA AS THE HEART OF BRITISH EMPIRE

London.—Canada as the heart of a remoulded consolidated British Empire, her vast spaces peopled by millions of new settlers, enjoying the fullest measure of prosperity and security, is the plan envisaged by R. A. Piddington, an English author-economist, as a means of saving the Anglo-Saxon race from ultimate extermination.

Scrap the British Empire as we know it to-day and build anew, is the challenge sounded by his latest book, "The New British Empire," a book that has caused considerable discussion.

The Anglo-Saxon race, Mr. Piddington declares, must find a new home where there is no room for idle expense and rich endowments, where life of the future will be lived to the full by upwards of 600,000,000 people.

"Germany would do it already if she had permission to colonize Canada," the author proceeds. "We are tired of a purposeless national existence between slumps, booms and wars. We are sick to death of Europe and its sprawling inmates. We want leadership to get us out of it and we can while we've got the ships, men and money—and a place to go to. If we delay much longer, we shall not have that."

The author admits that even to use Canada as a convenient outlet for Britain's population, with safeguards for her prosperity, might be somewhat unfattering to her pride.

"I take it, however," he adds, "that almost every nation in the world, so sparsely populated, that she does hold possibilities of further development by Britain or by an intruder, and that she is prepared, if necessary, to pay a certain price for security."

"Would it appeal to her pride to be asked to take over the leadership of the Empire, to become the principal state of the commonwealth and to receive the crown, the imperial government and Anglo-Saxon destinies?"

"Does she prefer to be the possible awning-ground of Asia or does she wish to be the home and sanctuary for liberty, civilization, culture and tradition?"

"I will add, that this extravagant dream, if you think it will one day be fulfilled, is by Japan if not by ourselves."

The author suggests his proposal for rebuilding the Empire should not be tackled until Britain is strong enough to defend herself against the growing danger of aggression.

Britain should then launch upon a long-range program of transferring the bulk of her population to Canada, preferably in the western provinces.

Mr. Piddington suggests the migration flow might be extended over a period of 15 years, with an average exodus of about 1,000,000 annually.

The chief effect of the proposed migration plan would be to bring Canada's second-best customer right into her shop. New industries, planned and located in advance, would demand fresh labor instead of competing with workers already there and the enlarged population would swallow the output of every factory in Canada and Great Britain, for at least 20 years. Rapid stimulus of business activity and ever-expanding markets, eventually would make the new seat of Empire the envy of the world, the economist argues.

As part of his scheme, Mr. Piddington would be willing to surrender most of Britain's colonial possessions. Even India and South Africa should be released, if necessary. As for the rest he said: "Admirably. A varied collection of islands, bird-sanctuaries and whaling stations for disposal by a propulsive gentleman about to retire from estate speculation and settle down with one of his children."

Espionage Charge

Washington.—Representative Scott (Democrat, California), told United States house of representatives, German, Italian and Japanese espionage agents were "working together" in the Panama Canal Zone. The Californian said he obtained his information from a magazine writer in whom he had great confidence. He did not name the writer.

Royalty Watches Mimic Battle

Aldershot, England.—The King and Queen watched the mechanized army demonstrate its firepower and mobility in a mimic battle here. They gazed through a haze of smoke and dust, thrown up by exploding shells, at the array of tanks, armored cars, field and machine guns engaged in the manoeuvres.

Japan Fears Russian Attack

Sending Best Troops To Guard Border Of Manchukuo

Tokyo.—The danger of conflict with Soviet Russia is increasingly claiming the attention of Japanese leaders and the public.

In informed quarters it was understood Japan recently moved some regular army units from China battelements to Manchukuo to man the border of Manchukuo and Korea. These forces have been estimated at between 200,000 and 300,000.

Many Japanese leaders have been described as advocates of an attack on Russia before the Soviet army could strike.

The foreign office spokesman expressed widespread feeling when he said in comment on alleged mistreatment of Japanese in Russian Sakhalin: "If Russia cares to aggravate the situation we will not hesitate to respond."

Tokyo newspapers gave prominence to a statement attributed to Marshal Vassily Blecher, commander of the Soviet far eastern army, that: "Now is the time to fight Japan."

Japanese and neutral military writers have agreed Japan's best divisions were not being sent to China but to northern Manchukuo. There they have been reports the Tokyo high command refused to send additional divisions from the homeland to reinforce the armies which have met reverses or been held to a stalemate in central China.)

Had Brilliant Career

Feodor Chaliapin, Celebrated Russian Singer, Dies In Paris

Paris.—Feodor Chaliapin, one time showman's apprentice, whose magic voice carried him to worldwide operatic fame, died here at the age of 65.

The celebrated Russian basso long had suffered from a kidney ailment and his condition became critical.

Continuing their aggressive tactics the Chinese said they had re-taken Chihli. Chiang said they had recaptured the walls of Chihli and engaged the Japanese in hand-to-hand combat.

The Chinese said they occupied hills surrounding Yihsen, on a spur line east of the Tientsin-Pukow railway, in a night attack and were engaging the Japanese defenders of that city in a sanguinary battle.

Centre of fighting shifted to Yihsen, according to the Chinese, after they drove the Japanese from Taierhchang, 25 miles to the southeast.

Reinforcements by thousands were being rushed into the Shantung war zone by Japanese in an effort to repel the Chinese offensive.

There was every indication the Chinese, who are marching mercilessly at the Japanese all along the line, do not intend to meet the reinforced Japanese armies in the middle of Shantung province.

They plan instead to keep the conflict on their own chosen ground in the southern part of the province, where the Japanese will have to use extensive supply and communication lines, always in danger of being cut by guerrilla raiders.

The vanguard of Japanese reinforcements sent from Tsingtao already met Chinese in a series of spirited engagements about 40 miles west of Taierhchang, where Chinese have claimed victory.

Meanwhile fresh Japanese troops sped from the north, the seriousness of the situation was emphasized by the departure of nearly a division of Japanese forces from Shanghai by sea, presumably for Tsingtao.

Air Raid Precautions

London.—Observe the lights, clear the left, attic or top floor of all that might be set on fire by incendiary bombs, are orders given by the government in a new air-raid precautions handbook.

Meteorological Service

Forecasts for Aviators On The Trans-Canada Air Lines

Toronto.—John Patterson, head of the meteorological bureau, announced a 24-hour meteorological service would be ready when the Trans-Canada Air Lines extends its eastward flight.

The chief effect of the proposed migration plan would be to bring Canada's second-best customer right into her shop. New industries, planned and located in advance, would demand fresh labor instead of competing with workers already there and the enlarged population would swallow the output of every factory in Canada and Great Britain, for at least 20 years. Social Reforms For Egypt

Government Program That Will Benefit The Peasants

Cairo, Egypt.—The King Farouk told the new parliament an Anglo-Italian agreement would be the "surest guarantee of peace."

The speech from the throne was delivered by Premier Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha. It said the government's first duty is to provide Egypt with adequate defences and promised the air force would be reinforced rapidly. It also outlined a social reform program to raise the standard of living of the Egyptian peasant.

Heads Bisley Team

Ottawa.—Lieut.-Col. J. D. Fraser, officer commanding the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, Ottawa, will command the 1938 Canadian Bisley team, the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association announced. Captain W. Worick of Winnipeg will be adjutant.

Pavilion Rebuilt

Glasgow.—Reduced to a pile of tangled timbers by a terrific gale early in February, the Canadian pavilion at the British Empire exhibition, Bellahouston park, is rapidly nearing completion.

Would Better Conditions

Business Men Advised To Take More Interest In Public Affairs

Vancouver.—Business men were urged to take a greater interest in public affairs by Erick F. Willis, leader of the Conservative opposition in the Manitoba legislature, when he addressed the members of the Vancouver junior board of trade.

The more interest they took, he said, "the better the conditions and legislation that will result."

"This will be followed by less expenditures and waste, which automatically will be reflected in less taxation."

The business man should know his political representatives, Mr. Willis continued, for only by such knowledge could he gauge the probable actions of those to whom he had delegated the authority to govern.

JAPANESE ARE ON THE DEFENSIVE ON A WIDE FRONT

Shanghai.—Foreign military observers believe the Japanese are in an extremely difficult military position in South Shantung province, in the first two of 10 Lockheed 14 monoplanes ordered by Trans-Canada Air Lines, will be made at Burbank, California, before members of T.C.A. personnel who will pilot the machines to Vancouver after satisfactory completion of the tests.

With a 250-mile-an-hour top speed and a cruising range of 220, the new Trans-Canada craft are classed among the fastest airliners on the continent. They both luxuriant accommodation for 11 passengers as well as space for the crew of three, and have a cargo capacity of 2,700 pounds.

A fuel capacity of 534 gallons permits a cruising range of 1,575 miles from the two Pratt and Whitney motors. The wing span of 65 feet, six inches measures approximately 10 feet greater than that of the Electras in which pilots are now conducting experimental flights across western Canada. Forty-four feet, four inches is the overall length and the planes, fully loaded, will weigh 17,500 pounds.

Apathy in Government

Says Time Has Come For More Aggressive Action

London.—A. R. Mosher, president of the All-Canada Congress of Labor, told the eighth annual convention banquet the congress "is not attacking the government, it is attacking the system and the apathy of the government."

The time "has come for more progressive action to remove those things that stand in the way of a more abundant life for all," Mr. Mosher said.

He denied news reports the executive board of congress is urging political action.

Smuggling Plot

San Francisco.—Seven men were questioned as federal and California authorities investigated a smuggling plot in which $40,000 worth of narcotics landed in San Francisco from the United States navy transport Chaumont.

NEW FRENCH PREMIER

Following the fall of Premier Leon Blum of France, M. Daladier (above), War Minister, has been given the difficult task of forming a new Government. Finance was responsible for the defeat of the Blum Government in the French Chamber of Deputies.

Test Planes

New Trans-Canada Aircraft Said To Be Fastest On The Continent

Winnipeg.—Initial test flights of the first two of 10 Lockheed 14 monoplanes ordered by Trans-Canada Air Lines, will be made at Burbank, California, before members of T.C.A. personnel who will pilot the machines to Vancouver after satisfactory completion of the tests.

With a 250-mile-an-hour top speed and a cruising range of 220, the new Trans-Canada craft are classed among the fastest airliners on the continent. They both luxuriant accommodation for 11 passengers as well as space for the crew of three, and have a cargo capacity of 2,700 pounds.

Smuggling Plot

San Francisco.—Seven men were questioned as federal and California authorities investigated a smuggling plot in which $40,000 worth of narcotics landed in San Francisco from the United States navy transport Chaumont.

This number was reduced to 140,000 when an arbitrator appointed by the government sent 20,000 strikers in aviation plants back to work.

Further progress was achieved when employers and "stay-in" strikers in the plants still deadlocked agreed to submit their differences to arbitration.

Before the confidence vote, Daladier advised parliament the destiny of France was at stake and insisted that in the face of a returned Europe every one of France's internal weaknesses undermined the nation's security.

The first reaction was announced by Jacques Duclos, secretary of the Communist party, that strikers in the nationalized aviation factories—numbering about 20,000—were ready to return to work. Duclos is a deputy.

Duclos' announcement was confirmed by the minister of labour, Guy Lachapelle, who said the strikers agreed to work 45 instead of 40 hours a week, with an increase in pay of 75 centimes (about two cents) an hour. They originally demanded an increase of two francs an hour (about six cents).

The workers' decision was made known after Daladier stated in the chamber the government would take steps to keep the armament factories in operation, regardless of strikes.

Deputies considered the premier's statement as a warning he would mobilize strikers and send them back to work as soldiers, a status which would make quitting equivalent to desertion.

Heavy Wheat Buying

May Indicate Britain Is Filling All Available Storage Space

London.—Commodities buying of wheat crops convinced dealers on the Baltic exchange that the British government has ordered lending millers to fill available storage space and maintain a three-month supply as a phase of national defence.

During a three-day period 30 cargoes, totaling about 14,000,000 bushels were taken up by leading buyers. Normal buying is about six cargoes a week.

Prices, however, have not responded in full measure to such large transactions, rising only by the equivalent of six cents a bushel. This perhaps resulted from the fact that most of the buying was confined to one month and spread over numerous weeks.

Official confirmation of a government hand in the buying was lacking, but dealers believed an official statement would be forthcoming shortly.

Children Fire Victims

Three Burned To Death When Farm House Destroyed

Prud'homme, Sask.—Trapped in a two-story farm house which burst into flame when coal oil was used to light a fire, three children of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Grise were burned to death at 7:40 a.m. Three other children were rescued by their mother, and four more escaped the tragedy by being away at mass. Mr. Grise is now at Ste. Hyacinthe, Que., where he is seeking work.

The three victims of the fire were Dolores, eight; Roland, seven; and a baby, aged five months. Mrs. Grise and Renee, nine; Bertrand, five, and Armand, three.

"Yet," he said, "the spirit that made possible what Canada did from 1914 to 1919 can win through to national unity."

Only recently, said Mr. Bennett, a speaker in the Nova Scotia legislature had said the place to erect a statue to Sir Charles Tupper was not in Halifax but in "Upper Canada." Sir Charles Tupper had made federation possible.

"And provincialism manifests itself in this day and generation by someone saying, 'Go to Upper Canada and stick a monument to him there.'

That was just an illustration, he said. All across Canada people were talking of provincial rights "as if there were nine sovereignties when in fact there can be but one and that sovereignty is Canada."

The former prime minister, about to retire from party leadership, binged his discussion on national unity on an announcement of plans for the young men's section of the board of trade to make a goodwill visit to Detroit. He did not wish to be misunderstood, he said, but he thought Canadians should know Canada before they knew any other country. He would like to see such trips to western Canada, the Maritimes and Quebec.

Mr. Bennett heard of the money being spent on the drouth-stricken areas of the west and in the west much of exploitation by the east. Canadians had to move about to see and learn of their fellows. Too little was heard of what eastern Canada had done for the west in the last few years and of the factories in eastern Canada which had been kept busy by western demands in earlier years.

Year after year people who had put their best in labor and money into farms and homes had sown their grain, only to see it come up a few inches and wither away under the breath of a desert wind. In the terrible struggle of western Canada with drouth the women have shown a fortitude and courage which is beyond words of praise from any man."

Opposes Padlock Law

Vancouver.—The United Church presbytery of Vancouver, at a special meeting, placed itself on record as opposed to Quebec's "padlock law" and unanimously passed a resolution urging its amendment or repeal.

The resolution, which will be forwarded to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, commended the federal minister of justice for "opening negotiations with the Quebec government to have the act, known as the padlock law, amended or repealed."

R.C.M.P. Changes

Ottawa.—Superintendent Y. A. M. Kemp, adjutant at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters here, will be transferred to Saskatoon to take charge of the subdivision there, it was announced. He will relieve Superintendent W. Munday, who will be transferred to another post not yet selected. Several other changes in the R.C.M.P. staff were announced.

Anglo-American Trade Pact

Bromsgrove, England.—The new Anglo-American commercial accord will be a "trade agreement pure and simple" and not a "political arrangement meaning a sacrifice by any British industry," Captain Euan Wallace, parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade, declared in a speech.

Cuba Lowers Tariff To Canada

Ottawa.—Cuba has extended to Canada her minimum tariff, the government was advised. For the past two years the maximum tariff, double the minimum impost, has been applied to most of the goods entering that country from Canada.

NATIONAL UNITY IS URGED BY RT. HON. R. B. BENNETT

Toronto.—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, urged young Canadians to think in terms of Canada and to make a contribution to national unity. Grave as were such Canadian problems as those of unemployment and railroads they could be solved if Canadians would think in terms of the nation, instead of thinking of provinces or sections.

"Now that I am about to join the vast army of unemployed," said Mr. Bennett, "all I wish to say to you is let there be no provincial boundaries to your patriotism."

Mr. Bennett addressed the young men's section of the Toronto board of trade and said he was induced to speak as he did only because of the gravity of the present situation. It was common knowledge that there had never been less unity in Canada than today.

"Yet," he said, "the spirit that made possible what Canada did from 1914 to 1919 can win through to national unity."

Only recently, said Mr. Bennett, a speaker in the Nova Scotia legislature had said the place to erect a statue to Sir Charles Tupper was not in Halifax but in "Upper Canada." Sir Charles Tupper had made federation possible.

Isolation or Drifting?

Where, and which way?

(1) There is one thing that must be quite plain to Canadians today, that if Canada has a foreign policy the electors in Canada know nothing whatsoever about it. Presumably, Mr. McKenzie King has a foreign policy, but is keeping it for his own private secret. And this is known as a democratic country?

(2) Mr. R.B. Bennett informs the Canadian public to expect another depression. That means, I presume, we will have to have sound money, and at the same time take up another notch in our belt. Paradoxical, you must admit. The word paradox is hard to define, but a definition of the word, as given by a man in England, re traffic regulations, is as good as any. "If you go to the left, you go right; if you go to the right, you go wrong. Perhaps Canada today is like a paradox."

The Hon. Colin Campbell, Ontario Minister of Public Works says, "We do not know how to use our natural resources. We allow our gold output to be shipped to foreign nations, as though it were so much butter and cheese. We export eighty million dollars or more in gold each year. Other countries issue four dollars in paper money for every dollar's worth of gold they take from Canada." Why cannot Canada do something along the same line, with its gold, to bolster a lagging currency supply? Mr. Campbell states, this is neither unorthodox or inflationary. (See Hon. Campbell's address, London, Ontario, April 18th)

Canadians spend millions every year in goods that could be and decidedly should be manufactured in this country. From talcum powder, machinery to tractors. The Canadian people should be Canada's best customers. Given a spending power through wages, they would be. Her population would increase rapidly, and the standard of living rise accordingly. But a proposal that Canada could possibly manufacture the bulk of the goods her people require, would be held down by cries of, "Do you wish to practise isolation?" Isolation? Impossible. Most absurd. No, go on as you are. Send us (foreign countries) all your money for goods, machinery and whatnots. Isolation is horrible to contemplate, especially from an international financier's view-point. Isolation has been pronounced as impossible. One thing we are sure of, however, Canada has never even remotely tried it.

The set-up we have today cannot be so wonderful, for I again repeat, "Does not Mr. R.B. Bennett say that another depression is coming?" A depression in a country with such natural resources as this one has, and no population. A depression? When a country like New Zealand finds herself short of thirty-six thousand men in the building trade alone, I do not know if there is, as the old saying goes, "Something rotten in Denmark" But I do know that there is something radically wrong with Canada. How a country, second to none in the world, as regards natural resources and climate, with practically no population, cannot find employment for her men and pay them wages compatible with maintaining a decent home, wife and children, is beyond me. Remember always, a nation is only as strong as her homes. Destroy the home life of the nation, and the nation will collapse.—Garrett.

Letters to the Editor

As an act of courtesy "Letters to the Editor" are published but the Chronicle cannot be held responsible for the opinions expressed.

In this way, personal credit is built up, and is kept in the community for the use of those who created it. Objects of the credit union are: (1) Encourage thrift among the members by a weekly raving plan, (2) To encourage study among the members—especially in the field of credit and—community endeavor, (3) To issue credit to members based on the funds built up by industry and thrift on their part.

The credit union is not by any means a new or untried theory, although there may be comparatively few people who are aware of the fact there are almost 4000 credit unions now in operation in North America.

The first of these was founded at Lévis Quebec as long ago as 1900 Alphonse Desjardins, who has studied similar organizations for some years previous to this. Moved by the conditions and hopelessness attitude of the poorer workers in Quebec, M. Desjardins, worked out details of a plan best fitted for Canadian conditions.

Over Four Hundred Miles To Be Built To Complete Trans-Canada Highway

Ignoring the myriad detours which mark new construction on the Trans-Canada highway, there remain after five years of intensive construction and the expenditure of approximately $30,000,000, over 400 miles of road to be built. It will cost about $20,000,000 and can scarcely be completed before 1941. When that is done and the route opened to through traffic, it will probably be given the designation No. 1. At least in several provinces, this number has been reserved for that purpose.

Over a course 4,000 miles in length from Sydney, N.S., to Victoria, B.C., there are three gaps in the Main street of Canada. The first is a 60-mile stretch in Nova Scotia. The second is the major one, 270 miles in the Lake Superior section of Ontario. The third is a 78-mile stretch around the Big Bend of the Columbia River in British Columbia. The Nova Scotia link will be forged within two years. Construction in the Rockies is more difficult but here, too, the Dominion's program calls for completion in two years.

The Lake Superior link is the only one which will take an indeterminate length of time. Five years would seem to be an optimistic estimate of the time required to connect eastern and western Canada by an all-weather motor highway.

Construction has been done almost entirely by the provinces and has been encouraged by federal grants-in-aid amounting to 50 per cent. of the cost. In 1934, $14,551,132.78 has been spent by Ottawa and a like amount by the provinces.

In addition, upward of $1,000,000 has been spent by the Dominion in northwestern Ontario unemployment relief camps. These men did road work. Further sums have been spent by the Dominion on the sections of the highway which are in Alberta and B.C. Annual payments on each of which of the four highway, built or improved in the past five years, is still rough. This class of road comprises, chiefly, the stretch through new Ontario.

Expenditures have been at the rate of about $6,000,000 per year. In the future, the totals are likely to be smaller, with some $20,000,000 being spent in the next five years.

By provinces, the expenditures since 1930 have been:

Prince Edward Island	$ 263,021.35
Nova Scotia	1,525,420.16
New Brunswick	971,360.02
Quebec	3,756.28
Ontario	10,239,072.89
Manitoba	816.32
Saskatchewan	10,460.02
Alberta	200,944.83

Pedestrian's Liability

Motorist In England Receives Damage From A Pedestrian

When a motorist recovers damages from a pedestrian, it is news. Such cases are reported from England where an Ipswich motorist has been required to pay for the damage done when he swerved to avoid a pedestrian, but has been held to be entitled to compensation from the pedestrian.

The judgment apparently recognizes the primary responsibility of the motorist for any damage which his car may do. It is reasonable that any one who undertakes to drive on a public highway should assume liability for any damage which may result from the operation of his car.

But the unusual feature of the judgment is that it recognises that a motorist, who is driving carefully and is suddenly faced with an emergency caused by the carelessness of a pedestrian, is entitled to compensation if in swerving to avoid that danger he runs into other danger.—Toronto Telegram.

Film Version Of The Bible

A Three-Hour Film Of The Bible Is Project Of British Company

A British film company, Vogue Films, greatly daring, at a time when our national production seems to be at its lowest ebb, propose to produce a film version of the Bible, which will cost $400,000, employ 10,000 people, take a year to make, and occupy something like three hours of running time on the screen.

Vogue Films, it seems, are nothing if not ambitious. Undeterred by the censors' ban, which forbids the reproduction of the figure of Christ on screen, they intend to tackle both Old and New Testaments. The film, they say, will be in color. It will be shown in three different dimensions. It will be treated in sections by a number of leading writers. It will be played by famous actors from a variety of countries. It will be circulated to the ordinary commercial theatres as a single feature, running in all to something like 15,000 feet.

Old Testament history, when tactfully done, has never given the censors any trouble. The story of Moses and the crossing of the Red Sea was the highlight of the silent film "The Ten Commandments." New Testament stories have been shown from time to time without a censor's certificate, by permission of the L.C.C., a variation, however, of the case of this and were Cecil B. De Mille's "King of Kings," which was given special Easter week showings in the latter days of silent pictures.

In almost all cases of religious films passed for exhibition by local authorities certain rules of exhibition apply. These include, amongst others, no pictorial posters; no mention of the names of the actors; no smoking in the auditorium; musical accompaniment to be of a religious character; and no other film to be shown in the same program.

It will be interesting to see how the newly projected Bible film will meet these various conditions.

The Bible is an enormous treasury of stories, dramatic, exciting, romantic, and lyrical, for the serious film research student. But it would be unfair to pretend that other producers have not already come close to the idea, and been forced, for various reasons, to abandon it. Korda's projected "King of the Jews," from the Mary Borden story, to be directed by Victor Sjostrom, was the last case in point.—London Observer.

Time Moves On

Grandmothers Of Olden Days And Later Models

If you are one who remembers Grandma as a sweetly wrinkled old lady in lace cap who sat by the fire and knitted on winter evenings and rocked and fanned herself on the porch in summer, you're just an old-timer.

The activities of a Grandmothers' Club recently organized in Chicago will give you an idea what a streamlined person the contemporary grandmother is.

This club boasts 39 grandmothers. One is a candidate for mayor. Another employs 300 people in her candy factory. A third heads the B. and O. women's department. A fourth manages a $2,000,000 trust. A fifth (with 13 grandchildren) manages a gravel pit. A sixth, 72, has sold insurance for a living since she was 54. And so on.

Like younger folks, these grandmas play golf, tennis, work. Listed among their recreations are horseback riding, swimming, boating, fishing, hiking and gardening.

Rocking chairs? Why, bless your soul, leave them for the tired and decrepit younger generations!—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Women As Travellers

Are Very Practical And Tip Only If They Get Service

Women—mostly teachers and nurses—travel most on railways. A. Gardner told the Westmount Women's Club in Montreal. Mr. Gardner was quoting data received from railwaymen in Canada and the United States.

The element of romance in travel probably was responsible in part and emancipation also was a factor. "Bargain" fares were a great appeal to women indifferent when they were merely labelled "low fares." And women all-expense fares, since they want to know just what a trip is going to cost.

Women show more practical sense than men in tipping—more fair play, the speaker said. They tip, he suggested, to ensure promptitude or for service—and when a woman doesn't receive service she doesn't tip. Women, too, are more given to buying transportation from advertising. Also, they seem to feel they will enjoy a trip in ratio to the number of questions they ask the railway people. A side trip included in a ticket has an irresistible appeal.

When the family is taking a trip the wife makes 90 per cent. of the decisions and does 70 to 75 per cent. of the shopping. In this case, it is the girl who makes the inquiries about the honeymoon trip. The train staff always recognizes a honeymoon couple—because both are wearing new shoes.

Women have better travel sense when it comes to baggage—and their small overnight bags are a joy to the porters.

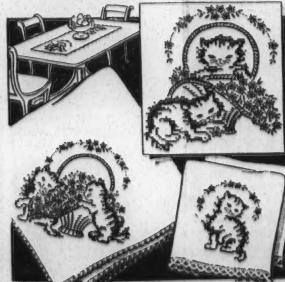

In one respect men are somewhat superior to women as travellers, said the speaker, referring to the feminine penchant for monopolizing all the dressing room space and keeping it for a long period.

When a man makes a complaint he says he is speaking for his wife, but women "thinks you should know about this" but she does not want the offender to lose his job as a result.

Like men, women leave all sorts of things on trains—but never in the history of railroading has a compact been left behind.

The origin of the ceremony of laying a cornerstone is of greatest antiquity and, according to some historians, sacrificial rites were practiced when laying the foundations of a building.

Rust-Resistant Wheats Have Overcome Menace Caused by Barberry Bush

Growing Alfalfa

Poor Soil If Fertilized Will Yield Good Crop

Alfalfa is needed to start and is more productive on good fertile soils, but if carefully limed, inoculated, and fertilized, alfalfa often does well on land that is far from rich, according to J. B. R. Dickey, writing in a recent Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station circular. In any event, the soil must be well drained. If the soil requirements are properly satisfied good crops are made under the cool and humid conditions that prevail in the East, even though the crop is especially adapted to a warm and semi-arid climate. The only climatic handicap of the Eastern grower is greater trouble with grass and weeds which results in shorter lived stands.

Unless the soil is sweet it is not worthwhile to attempt to grow alfalfa. Soils having a very high lime requirement should be seeded to more acid-tolerant crops, and moderate amounts of lime applied for several years so as gradually to decrease acidity to a point where alfalfa can be grown. The crop does best on soils that have been deeply sweetened by repeated limings. Neglect of proper inoculation very frequently is the cause of alfalfa failure. Using pure cultures of inoculants is the easiest method of inoculation.

Like other legumes, alfalfa responds most strongly to phosphoric acid and potash. If properly inoculated, the crop can supply its own nitrogen after becoming well established. An application of about 4,000 pounds of a fertilizer carrying two to four per cent. nitrogen and good percentages of phosphoric acid and potash is advised when seeding it without a nurse crop on land which is not especially fertile. Where sown with winter or spring grain, the grain should be well fertilized. Where stands are to be mown for forage, it seems very profitable to top-dress with phosphate or phosphoric acid and potash. The fertilizer applied to the grain or the new seed should be adequate for the first year or two that the alfalfa is mown. After an application of 30 to 40 pounds per acre, a top-dressing of 0-12-5, 0-10-10, or similar mineral fertilizer during the spring or early autumn has sometimes shown marked stimulation to growth and production and has also greatly reduced the amount of winter injury.

For National Fitness

British Government Will Link Physical Culture Movement With Cooking

The British government's national fitness campaign is going to effect not only muscles but menus.

Much of the physical unfitness of the English people is attributed to unsuitable and badly cooked food.

The ministry of health and the board of education are considering how the creditor and teacher of cooking may be linked with the physical culture movement.

No detailed plan has yet been produced, but it is anticipated that steps will be taken to encourage the provision of more evening cooker centres for adults and the better patronage of those already in existence.

Many girls now go from school to work in shops, offices, or factories. By the time they are married they have forgotten most of what they learned about cooking and the dietetics at school. It is this gap between school life and marriage that the ministry of health and the board of trade will attempt to bridge.

The Right Way

To Lift Heavy Weight Without Putting Strain On Back

If you watch a person who is not used to hard work attempt to lift a heavy weight you will notice that he invariably bends his back, keeps his legs straight, and then reaches down and lifts the object. This puts the greater part of the strain upon his back.

The best way to lift a heavy weight is to keep your back straight, bend your knees, grasp the object with your hands, and push up with your legs, putting the heaviest work on to your legs, which can stand a heavier strain than your back.

Bryan was extremely superstitious. He always believed in lucky and unlucky days, disliked undertaking anything on a Friday; avoided being helped to salt at table; and if he spilled salt or oil, lit bread fall or broke a mirror, he knew something terrible was going to happen.

The associate committee on field crop disease of the National Research Council of Canada finds rust-resistant wheats and oats may eventually obviate the necessity for destruction of barberry and buckthorn bushes.

The committee, seated at Winnipeg, has studied disease control of rust, smut, root-rots and other plant diseases. While the perfect wheat that can overcome all disease remains to be developed, the fact rust-resistant wheats have overcome the menace of barberry bush rust-producing qualities was an outstanding development.

The associate committee on grain research announced approval of two new rust-resistant wheats, known only as "Rust Laboratory RL1097 and 975.1 or Crop Test 118 and 124 wheats," pronounced by Dr. C. H. Goulden, the producer, as resistant to leaf rust, covered smut and stem rust.

Dr. Goulden, chief cerealist specialist of the Dominion rust laboratory at Winnipeg, explained rust develops through the barberry bush and complete elimination of barberry bush growth in North America would probably eliminate rust troubles of Canadian wheat farmers.

He said the barberry bush grows in the Maritime provinces and southern sections of United States. Spores of rust float through the air and eventually settle in Western Canada.

Plant breeders reported on varieties of rust-resistant wheats and oats types and said "definite progress is being made in development of varieties that are resistant to other diseases."

The grains which show resistance to rust and other diseases are being used as parents in order to produce resistant strains.

Plans are underway to develop wheat resistant to the sawfly by cross-breeding to produce a solid-stem wheat. Solid-stem wheats, a rarity in North America, are being cross-bred with more common wheats.

The sawfly lays eggs in stems of ordinary wheat and the larva or worm bores down the stem. Thus the plant breaks under pressure of wind and fallen wheat fields are practically impossible to harvest profitably.

The committee found that mercuric dust treatments, applying chemical dust to seed wheats, was a feasible protection against smut which exists in the seed apices. The most practical mercuric dust mixer known is a home-made machine resembling a churn but a perfect dusting machine would be welcomed.

While dust-treatment of wheat seeds would protect against smut, plant breeders say strains must be developed entirely resistant to smut. Some grains already produced are partially resistant. The varieties were not named by the committee.

Work on root rot disease has undergone co-operative study by plant pathologists and soil microbiologists, the committee stated. "Definite progress toward eliminating this disease has been made but more work must be done before complete control of root rot is obtained."

Sawfly damage, while not as sweeping as rust, takes a heavy toll from the wheat fields every year. In 1935 the Saskatchewan loss was officially estimated at more than $3,000,000.

The emerging grub, hatched from sawfly eggs, saws a ring around wheat stalks, plugs the stub with sawdust and spends the winter just above the ground.

The committee stated parent material is available that is immune to sawfly attacks.

Canadian farmers "should beware of mis-statements about the malting quality of barley varieties," the committee announced.

Only six types of barley are eligible for the malting grades, the committee's statement said. They are "Ontario Agriculture College 21, Manchurian, Merseny, Merseny Ottawa 60, Gartons and Peatland barley."

After considering the malting data, agronomic characteristics and the purity of available seed supplies, the committee recommended growing of only O.A.C. 21 and Merseny Ottawa 60 for malting purposes.

Huge Illuminated Map

Being Prepared For Canadian Pavilion At Glasgow Exhibition

A huge map of Canada, covering 6,000 square feet, is being prepared for the Canadian Pavilion at the Empire Exhibition to be held in Glasgow during the summer.

The map will be on plates of burnished copper from Canadian mines, and by operating switches visitors will be able to light up the scenes of various features of Canada, such as mining, posts, of mountains, aerodromes, cities, and so on. There will be pictures of the chief buildings of the bigger cities. The map is said to be the biggest illuminated map in the Empire.

Dentists recommend Wrigley's Gum as an aid to strong, healthy teeth, cleanses them of food particles, strengthens gums. Aids in reducing toothaches after meals. Helps keep your teeth! Take some home for the children too—they will love it!

leaving them was that he wanted to see how Charles was getting along. Charles being the name he had given to the fox cub. The nursery of the infant Charles had been transferred from the clothes closet in Ernest's room to a small store-room just off the butler's pantry, and Mrs. Feathery had been installed as foster-mother, head nurse and chief dietitian, posts for which she volunteered, declaring,

"He needs a mother's care, Mr. Bingley, and seeing as how you've never had a mother, sir, I'll take care of the old fellow until I'm getting him up like he was one of my own, I having presented the late Mr. F. with six, though not foxes."

She demonstrated her claim to a maternal instinct by bending over Charles's crib — a shoe-box — and gurgling,

"Nice ickle foxy izum hungry? Nurse Feathery will feed fuul booms. He was good ickle foxy, did-dum was?"

She kept an eye on Crump to observe the effect this display of femininity had on the butler, who hovered about the background as pleased and impressed. Devil, Devil!

"Rather easily," she answered. She took a lighter tone. "We Britons are a funny folk, as perhaps you've noticed," she said. "And full of paradoxes. We hate smoke and we produce more and bigger snobs than any other country on the face of the earth. We jeer at bounders trying to act like gentlemen and tolerate gentlemen who act like bounders. We resent pushers like bounders and we look down on pretenders."

"Like me," said Ernest.

"Oh, shut up and let me finish," Rosa said. "There are pretenders and pretenders. Some of them stand by their guns when their bluff is called, and show the one quality which we English value above all others—pluck. Stop chewing that tooth, Ernest. I'm talking about you."

He threw away the leaf. "I'm going back to the castle," he said. "I can't even guess what the others think or say if you think I'm sort of all right. If you think well of me, Rosa, everybody else in the whole world can—well, they can go and sit on a porcupine—that's what they can do."

"Think well of you, my dear Ernest?" she said. "But of course I do. You saved our castle for us, and a moment ago you properly saved my life."

"It was nothing," said Ernest.

"Oh, no! I'd look funny going around without my life. And that reminds me that I haven't properly thanked you."

"Don't mention it," said Ernest.

"Yes, I will," said Rosa, and she kissed him again.

Ernest Bingley came as close to tumbling out of the tree as a man can come. It was just a single, quick, light kiss, but it nearly bowed Ernest off his branch. He had to throw his arms around Rosa to keep from falling.

He let go a second later when he heard a voice say,

"Oh, there you are."

It was the Earl of Bingley, meandering castward through the grove. "Oh, hullo, Father," said Lady Rosa.

"What are you doing up there?" asked the earl. "Playing Christmas tree ornaments?"

"We—we just found ourselves here," stammered Ernest.

"Staying long?" inquired the earl. "No, we're coming right down."

"Till wait," said the earl.

Ernest helped Rosa to dismount from the tree.

"We'd best toddle along," said the earl, "and no stopping to pick butercups, either, or we shall be late for lunch. I'm so peckish I could eat a jellied curate. Being thrown from a horse always gives me a wobbly appetite."

Homeward the three houseless huntens wended their way.

When they reached the castle, Ernest slipped away from the earl and his daughter, and secreted himself in his tower. His pretext for

Keeps Peace In Desert

Major Glubb Has One Of The Strangest Jobs in the World

"The Younger Lawrence of Arabia," as they call Major J. B. Glubb, has one of the strangest jobs in the world.

Head of the Arab Legion's Desert Patrol, he inspects a watchful eye on the frontiers of Trans-Jordan for seven years, as well as dabbling in education for Bedouin children at desert outposts, improvement of inter-tribal relations, and relief of physical suffering.

Tall and heavy-featured, Major Glubb has a dark scar on his chin which earned the title "Abu Hanek" (Father of the Chin) by which he is known in the desert.

Formed in 1936 as a section of the Arab Legion, Glubb's Desert Patrol consists entirely of Bedouins. The purpose of the organization is to prevent inter-tribal raiding, protect the oil pipeline across the desert, discourage tribal interests in politics and disorders in neighboring countries, and maintain a desert intelligence service.

Major Glubb is responsible only to Peake Pasha, commanding the Arab Legion. He was already wise in desert ways when he came to Trans-Jordan from Iraq in 1930. Immediately he adopted Bedouin customs and dress, bought a tent, camels, and sheep, and travelled with nomad tribes from pasture to pasture.

Now he has the force to demonstrate its present strength. He hopes eventually to have near 2,600 men. The Arab Legion, the parent organization, has 43 officers and 1,062 men, with headquarters at Amman.

As he stood facing the assemblage as if it were a firing squad a surprising sound began to beat on his ears—drums. It was made by the guests bringing their palms loudly together. Ernest looked behind him to see whose entrance had elicited such enthusiastic applause. Nobody was behind him but Crump. He wondered what that estimable personage had done to earn the ovation.

"All together now—for he's a jolly good fellow, which nobody deny."
